Let’s Talk About It
a dinner discussion
Tuesdays - 6:30pm @ Cold Spring

Led by Northern Kentucky University professors and lecturers.

Sept. 9

Sycamore Row
by John Grisham

The ensuing battle over Seth Hubbard’s will puts lawyer Jake Brigance at the center of a mystery about the town of Clanton and a plot of land once called Sycamore Row.

Discussion led by Dr. Jon Cullick, professor of English, who teaches courses in American literature, and Robert L. Raper, an attorney with a research interest in law & literature.

Sept. 23

King Lear
by William Shakespeare

King Lear is deeply invested in the question of omnipotent power and the hold that power has over a patriarch’s sense of well being, sanity and corporeal wholeness.

Dr. Rachel Zlatkin is an honors program professor and specializes in feminist, psychoanalytic & early modern and Modernist literature.

Oct. 7

The Interestings
by Meg Wolitzer

A chance meeting at summer camp shapes the lives of six adolescences for the next 40 years. Beginning in 1974, the novel mediates the themes of honesty, depression, love, envy, faith, talent and death.

Dr. Tonya Krouse is an associate professor of English who focuses on 20th century British literature, literary theory & gender studies.

Oct. 21

The Lowland
by Jhumpa Lahiri

Set in India and America, Lahiri explores how family ties are forged, tested, and challenged as individuals follow their own dreams.

Dr. Parmita Kapadia is an associate professor of English who specializes in Shakespeare & post-colonial literature.

Thanks to the Friends of the Campbell County Public Library for their sponsorship and Chick-fil-A @ Newport Pavilion for providing dinner at each event. Registration required, as space is limited.
